

Learning in England ∞ Summer Schools

27 > What is a Summer School?

There are many, many Summer Schools, run all over the UK, for different age groups, different purposes and different periods of time. Most will last for between one and four weeks and be organised from the first week of July through to the end of August. The cost can be significant from £500 for one week to £5,000 for four weeks.

Most are run in boarding schools or Colleges at Oxford and Cambridge, which are set up for young people to use in term times and would otherwise be empty over the long vacation. They are in beautiful settings, with superb facilities. There will be a great timetable with lessons and trips out to interesting and fun places. There will be delicious and varied food offered in canteen style so there is choice at every meal and formal dinners once or twice each week. And for many, the highlight will be the opportunity to play in all sorts of team sports.

Lessons will all be conducted in English as that is the common language of the teachers, counsellors and young people on the Summer Schools.

You may want to begin or improve your skill in using English, or a Sport or being in a Musical or Dramatic production, but you could do a course in Robotics or Web Coding or Architecture, or Business, or Public Speaking or in Design and Technology...or learning about a profession such as Medicine, or Law, or Psychology or the Environment, to name but a few....

*"I came here from Germany and I really like it here. You get to know so many people from all over the world and it does not take long time to meet friends even if you come from a completely different part of the world. The activities are really fun, and I loved them, especially the trips during the weekends. Also, the lessons are not too strict, they are interesting. I had a lot of experiences here and I am glad I chose to come here again."*¹
